RELEASE: Immediate

NEW – Terra Brush proves versatile addition to Wiedenmann range

Wiedenmann's new and infinitely versatile Terra Brush can be used on a daily basis by the groundsman or greenkeeper to perform different jobs on different surfaces.

On synthetics, used regularly it will improve the playability of the surface. It brushes sand and rubber crumbs back into the infill zone, straightening and levelling the surface in a smooth pass. The brush heads have a special zig zag arrangement of the individual brush strips and when these travel across the turf they achieve a more even distribution of the infill which invariably aids the way the ball bounces during play.

There is a choice of firm or softer bristles and an optional rake with spring tines which loosen and level the field in one crossing. The standard brush has a working width of 1.85m but by adding a hitch option and a wing option to the base unit it doubles to an impressive and productive 3.95m. Generally, the firm bristles would be used on artificial surfaces but they are equally effective on fairways and playing fields. The soft bristles would be ideal for tees or greens.

On natural grass, the Terra Brush is perfect for removing early morning dew before cutting. It can also brush in top dressing and facilitate worm cast removal without using chemicals. In non-cutting months it helps turf presentation, its bristles standing the grass blades up from a more flattened position.

The trailed 1.85m base unit comes with a choice of either firm or soft bristles. There are a choice of three hitches 3 point linkage mounting, trailer with electric function (12v) or hydraulic function and wheels. Optional wing attachments come with either firm or soft bristles. Prices start from £1,450, ex VAT.
